

Finding Harmony

By Irma Vitale

This combo is composed of plants with different shapes and textures that share some common elements with a neighbour: the combination of burgundy, grey and green of the plants. Each of the pots has at least one plant of these colours. The palette of plant material for this type of container-gardening should focus on foliage colour rather than flowers to achieve a long lasting effect.

This shady composition with unique textures and fine detail can thrive even in hot and dry weather, beneath the canopy of a tree.

- 1- Impatiens "New Guinea"
- 2- Heuchera "Montrose ruby"
- 3- Rhaps excelsa
- 4- Cordyline australis "Red Star"
